Hi Sierra,

Thanks for taking my email. I am just curious what the plan is exactly for the Westmont Park project. Or, if these details are even ready or have been proposed even. I am wondering if there will be play structures for the little ones to let loose all their energy as well as possibly providing shade for the structures so the little ones don't get scorched hands on the equipment. If there will be play structures what is the proposed age range of the playground? I would hope from 1-12 years old as most other Beaverton parks are.

Also, if a playground is planned, Scholl's Ferry road is an extremely busy road with a 40 mph speed limit, but a lot of cars come zooming up that road faster than that speed limit right at that spot, right adjacent to where this proposed park is planned to be. So, safety is my concern there. Could there be a thick retaining wall or pillars that would prevent cars from careening through by accident? Also, maybe a fence to prevent little explorers from wandering too close to the drainage area on the potential east side of the park. What do you think?

I am also a bit curious about the time lines for now. I understand it is pretty early in the process. It would be really exciting to have a park we can walk to and not have to cross Scholl's Ferry road or have to drive to one. In our little neighborhood just north of the proposed park, we are isolated from walking to any park what so ever which kind of defeats Beaverton's axiom of having a park within walking distance of most households. Any details you could provide would be most appreciated.

Lastly, I am wondering what the nature area northwest of this Westmont Park project is for? Will we be able to have a nature trail or other ability to walk amongst the trees in that area? Is there a plan for that right now at all? I think it was called "Tenax Woods Natural Area."

Please let me know at your earliest convenience. Have a great weekend!

Thanks & Regards,
Nick
